

Why choosing a degree programme @stat.unibo?

“The world’s most valuable resource is no longer oil, but data”
(The Economist, 2017)

- Conceptual, quantitative and computational skills needed to learn from data, and to measure, control, and communicate uncertainty
- Academic staff:
 - more than 90 members
 - QS World University rankings by subjects 2023 - Statistics and Operational Research: the University of Bologna is in the top 100 worldwide
 - Expertise: statistical methods, statistics for economics, demography, biostatistics, probability, financial mathematics, applied economics
- Teaching offer: 3 international Master’s Degrees + 1 international curriculum

